"Haven't you any money to pay your fine?" asked the judge.

SENATE LEADERS RENEW EFFORTS TO AID JOBLESS

Republican Leader Says Congress to Furnish Help Soon

WASHINGTON, May 18. (AP)—Senate leaders renewed efforts on Wednesday for a compromise federal relief program and hurriedly gave assurance of action as a warning of a third party movement was sounded on the floor of this issue.

The warning, from Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, who has been frequently mentioned in connection with third party possibilities, drew a prompt reply from Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, that congress would provide for the jobless before adjourning.

Meanwhile a special committee of senate Democrats named to draft a relief program sought an agreement on the $2,400,000,000 proposal of Senator Wagner, of New York.

Senator Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic leader, and a member of the Democratic committee, predicted some kind of understanding on a relief measure by the end of the week.

Extortionists Apparently Lost Nerve After Stealing Tot

STUBENVILLE, O. May 18. (AP)—Two-year-old Eugene Swearingen was stolen from his crib Tuesday night by extortionists who apparently lost their nerve and tossed him behind a fence, county authorities said Wednesday.

Wednesday night Eugene was safely in the arms of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Swearingen of Warrenton, near here, none the worse except for a bruise over his left eye received when he was thrown behind the fence or when his abductors became frightened and struck him.

Th father said theft of his son, was threatened in three notes received demanding $500.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 18.—The senate slept on the tax bill over the week end, but the birds that are going to have to pay it didn't sleep any.

Some senators say that no man should be allowed to earn over $75,000 a year. They forget that a man that earns that much or more works for a different kind of an employer from the one senators work for.

Suppose you got $100,000 a year for working for a firm, and you spent $200,000,000,000 of their money that you didn't have, and didn't know where you was going to get it. How long would you be working for that firm?

Yours,

WILL.

BILLION DOLLAR BILL CLOSED TO BEER FOR TAXES

Senate Writes Finis; Four Tariff Items Present New Obstacle

VOTE OVERWHELMING AGAINST PROPOSALS

Debate Hours On Oil, Coal, Copper and Lumber Tariffs

WASHINGTON, May 18. (AP)—The billion dollar tax bill was firmly closed Wednesday by the senate against beer for revenue but Wednesday night its four tariff items presented a new obstacle.

In overwhelming and decisive votes, the first beer tests since national prohibition, the senate refused to legalize either the 2.75 or four per cent beer as a means of financing a $1,500,000,000 public construction bond issue.

Members Debate

Reaching the tariff provisions—oil, coal, copper and lumber—the members debated for hours as leaders took careful polls. Retention of all four items was predicted at adjournement Wednesday night with a vote due tomorrow.

The beer debate was brief. Roll calls showed the votes 60 to 23 against four per cent beer and 61 to 24 against 2.75 per cent. The Volstead act limits alcoholic content to one-half of one per cent.

Familiar Scenes Re-enacted

Scenes reminiscent of the old tariff fight of 1929 and 1930 were re-enacted as the first of the import taxes—that on oil—was reached.

Log rolling was manifest as cliques of senators formed on the floor and counted noses and to all appearances made trades on the various tariff proposals.

Up in the galleries beetle-eyed lobbyists, interested on both sides of the traiff issue, watched intently.

Pius Warns Against Greed, Atheism And Other Elements Described As Threatening Anarchy, Terrorism

VATICAN CITY, May 18. (AP)—Pope Pius XI warned the world Wednesday against greed, atheism, communism and nationalistic imperialism, threatening anarchy and terrorism in this time of "spiritual and economic distress."

Treaties and conferences are in vain, he said, in an encyclical, unless "there triumphs moral law based on God and conscience." Speculators had caused much woe and from "so much economic distress' communists and "enemies of all social order," profited.

The Pontiff poured out the "bitter grief of our soul" over the "war on God and church," marching under the "satanical banner" and using, he said, the modern inventions of the movies, radio and phonograph to corrupt the world.

Tracing the world's evils to the "lust of earthly goods," inequality of wealth and "nationalistic imperialism," he established an eight-day period of prayer, penance and expiation, beginning June 3 and coinciding with the feast of the Sacred Heart.

NEW DETAILS OF DECEPTION COME FROM NORFOLK

Curtis' Reguest For Earnest Money From Lindy Is Confirmed

OFFICIAL PLANS TO QUIZ YACHT SKIPPER

Dean Dobson-Peacock First Denies Then Confirms Report

NORFOLK, Va., May 18. (AP)—Astounding details of deception, of attempts to obtain "earnest money" and intimations of further startling revelations swirled Wednesday night in the wake of the confession of John Hughes Curtis that his Lindbergh negotiations were a hoax.

That Curtis had requested $25,000 of Col. Lindbergh as "earnest money," was confirmed by chief of police S. W. Ironmonger, the money to serve as evidence of good faith and a down payment on the ultimate ransom for return of the child.

To Quiz Peacock

Commonwealth's attorney John M. Arnold said he planned to seek information from Dean Dobson-Peacock, rear admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, the third member of the Norfolk trio, and Capt. F. H. Lackmann, skipper of the yacht Marcon used during two weeks of maneuvers out at sea for a kidnapers' boat that never was seen.

Requests that these three grant him audiences for the purpose of asking questions were made Wednesday, Mr. Arnold said.

Dean H. Dobson- Peacock, associate of Curtis in the "negotiations" gave further confirmation of the report. He explained that Colonel Lindbergh was asked to place the money on deposit in a Virginia bank, subject to withdrawal only by the endorsement of all three of the intermediaries in event the child was recovered. He stated it was his understanding throughout the negotiations that no advance payment of ransom was either asked by the supposed kidnapers or planned by the trio.

Knew Nothing

Earlier in the day the clergyman when asked regarding the report said, "I know nothing about it."

To the rapidly unfolding details of the fantastic and weirdly ironic tragedy to which Curtis confessed, Chief Ironmonger added his opinion Curtis had not made a complete confession.

"Something important," the police chief said, "has been withheld I believe, I cannot say, however, what my information is."

A high official also revealed Wednesday investigators are seeking to determine definitely the whereabouts of Curtis the night of March 1, when the infant Lindbergh was kidnaped from his parents' home in the Sourland hills. Mrs. Curtis said shortly after she was advised of the confession that Curtis was at home in Norfolk that night.

Learn Of Trip

Director of public safety Charles B. Borland said he had learned that Curtis went to New York on the morning of April 2, the date that Dr. J. F. Condon tossed the $50,000 of futile ransom money over a Bronx cemetery wall. Curtis left the naval air station here with Lieutenant George L. Richard, who piloted the negotiator on his various trips. Curtis as he always did on these trips, left Richard upon reaching his destination.

Officials began searching for a green sedan mentioned by Curtis, which they believed was not a "phantom of the imagination," but perhaps Curtis' own car, the only one which chief Ironmonger

DAMAGE PROBABLE FROM GRASSHOPPERS

Formula Given For Making Poison Bran Mash Mixture

Strong possibility of a general infestation of grasshoppers equal in intensity to that of 1923 for all of Texas except the eastern portion is indicated in a letter received by A. L. Edmiaston, county agent, from R. R. Reppert, entomologist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. "Following the recent warm rains eggs are hatching and small grasshoppers appearing," he says, "and as soon as infested areas are located the immediate application of control measures may save later damage. Places to be watched are sloping pasture land and areas next to ditches, creeks, grassy fence rows, and along stone fences and lines of outcropping rock ledges."

Poison bran mash has been highly successful in fighting grasshoppers and this has become the standard control measure, the county agent states. The formula he gives consists of 25 pounds of coarse wheat bran, 1 pound Paris green or white arsenic, 1 ounce of high grade amyl acetate (avoid cheap grades of banana oil or bronzing liquids,) 2 quarts cane or sorghum molasses, 1 pound common salt and enough water to make a moist mash. This quantity should cover five acres.

New York Police On Trail of Money Paid By Flying Colonel

NEW YORK, May 18, (AP)—The New York Evening Post said late Wednesday inspector Henry Bruckman of New York City police and a staff of detectives were on the trail of the currency bills paid by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in the hope of regaining his son alive. The newspaper says the money was passed in New York within the past ten days.

LINDBERGH TOOK LEAD IN MOVES TO TRAP CURTIS

Lays Groundwork By Asking "Intermediary" to Accompany Him

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 18. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh himself took the lead in a subtle series of maneuvers to obtain the hoax confession from John Hughes Curtis.

The complete story as revealed Wednesday showed Col Lindbergh first set the trap for Curtis last Thursday night when he was informed by radio his baby had been found dead. He casually requested the Norfolk "intermediary" to accompany him back here, where police finished the job.

New Queer Angle

Another queer angle entered the case when it was learned from Mineola, N. Y., that Inspector Harold R. King of the Nassau county police escorted a Long Island bootlegger to Hopewell Tuesday morning to aid in unmasking Curtis. He said this unnamed man confronted Curtis with a charge of "double-crossing" in another matter, but Col. Schwarzkopf denied this move was necessary.

The bootlegger's story as related to Inspector King accused the Virginia shipbuilder of accepting a substantial sum of money from him last December with an understanding he would purchase protection for him with Norfolk authorities. Curtis was said to have broken the alleged agreement.

Bootlegger Investigates

When the bootlegger heard of Curtis' activities in the kidnaping he started private investigation in the south and communcated his findings to Detective John Fogarty employed by Col. Henry Breckenridge. Fogarty got in touch with King and the man was taken to Hopewell. The bootlegger was described as a Scotsman, about 45, married and the father of several children.

The tactics used on Curtis stretched over more than 100 hours and represented the most advanced methods of detection. There was no third-degree, no brow-beating, no sustained grilling and the subject was at no time under detention.

Curtis Examined

As soon as the Virginian returned from his fabulous "chase" along the New Jersey coast Friday he was taken in hand by state police and examined intermittently all that day and night. He was asked to recount his "contacts" with the kidnapers without notes and once was taken to the shore to point out his purported meeting places.

Saturday he was told to tell the whole story again and this time he was allowed to refer to his memoranda. He glibly added a host of names, descriptions, places and facts which turned out to be figments and soon bogged himself deep in conflictions.

Allowed to Rest Sunday

Sunday the police gave him a day of rest and didn't go near him. They let him fulminate over the deception he had practiced on the Lindbergh family and judged right.

SHIP BUILDER IS CHARGED; POINTS FINGER AT DEAN

Pseudo Intermediary Voices Scathing Criticism Of Ministerial Ally

WANTED TO QUIT BUT PEACOCK URGED NOT

"Knew From Experience Only Interest Was Desire For Publicity"

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 18 (AP)—The full glare of the Lindbergh murder hunt put John Hughes Curtis in a jail cell Wednesday night and reflected new light on activity of Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, his associate in the baby negotiations which the boat builder confessed he "faked."

The garage on the estate of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was transformed into a courtroom for arraignment of Curtis—one of the closing chapters of the gigantic hoax by which the famous flier and countless others were given hope of finding his son alive long after the infant had been slain.

Curtis Criticizes Peacock

But before he waived a hearing on a charge of giving false information and started toward jail in default of $10,000 bail, Curtis voiced scathing criticism of his Norfolk, Va., ally.

Curtis wished to end the enormous deception, he said, on March 15 "because of my knowledge that the whole thing was untrue. But he said he "carried on because I had been continuously urged and encouraged by Dean Peacock, who was enjoying the publicity he was getting out of the newspaper stories."

"I know from my experience with the Dean," concluded Curtis, "that the only interest he had throughout this entire matter was one of satisfying his desires for publicity and the more he got the better he liked it."

Says Knew Were False

At another point Curtis said "many of the stories xxxx manufactured by Peacock were untrue and he had a knowledge of their untruthfulness at the time he released them for publication."

At his southern home, Dean Dobson-Peacock made an emphatic rebuttal to this criticism as well as the more important police statements regarding him.

Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf state police head, asserted the clergyman once expressed confidence in the "contacts" made by Curtis and endeavored without success to have Colonel Lindbergh supply $25,000 for ransom purposes.

Peacock Skeptical

Dean Dobson-Peacock said he was skeptical of the authenticity of the latest Curtis statement and insisted "we did not even start the negotiations until after March 22 when we visited Colonel Lindbergh." Earlier he had unequivocally denied any knowledge of a request that Colonel Lindbergh put up money.

A question as to whether grounds for criminal action possibly could be found in the asserted request for money from Colonel Lindbergh was met with the announcement that a reply would be sought from the attorney general of New Jersey.

Phrasing Looked To

An incidental development was the phrasing of the preface to Curtis' latest statement to police, indicating authorities were convinced the Lindbergh child was slain between 8 and 10 p. m. on the night of the kidnaping, March 1.

Another angle for investigation was provided by Charles B. Borland, director of public safety in Norfolk, Va., who says he had learned Curtis went to New York the morning of April 2, the date that Dr. John F. Condon, another intermediary, tossed the futile $50,000 ransom to a man in a Bronx (New York City) cemetery.

Police asserted answers Dr. Condon has made to their questions "adhere consistently to the fundamental facts related so far."

SHIP BUILDER

closed Wednesday night he had received between five and seven notes, supposedly from the kidnapers, after he had paid the ransom. All demanded more money. He replied to them by putting his answers under a rock near the cemetery where the ransom was paid, as directed to do in the notes.

He said these later notes did not bear the cryptic symbols which appeared on the original ransom demand and also was in the notes received before he paid the $50,000. He was not sure, he explained, whether these last five to seven notes were "genuine," but added:

"I wasn't taking any chances, so I answered them."

Not Shown To Lindy

They were not shown to Colonel Lindbergh, he said, but Col. Henry Breckenridge, the flier's attorney, knew of them.

"I was determined not to pay any more," Dr. Condon said in discussing the notes.

"You don't see my chin down, do you?" the aged educator said as he rode downtown to deliver a lecture. "I don't ask any favors of anyone. I know they're pointing their fingers at me, but all I wanted to do was to restore that baby to his mother."

He bought a newspaper and scanned it for his name. His eye spotted a headline:

"Jafsie sole contact now."

Reads Headline

"There, isn't that fine?" he said, reading the headline aloud.

He was anxious to know if there was any change of public feeling toward him.

"I worked night and day to restore the boy" he said with a sigh, "and all I get is thankless criticism."

Commenting on his scheduled appearance before the Bronx (New York City) grand jury on Friday, he said:

"I've told my story. They have my statement. If I make a contradition they must remember I've been pretty busy and this isn't all I have had on my mind."

"Do you think I took a penny of that $50,000?" he asked. "Why I even saved Colonel Lindbergh $20,000."

Saves Lindy Money

In explanation he reiterated a story of how he had been given $70,000 by Colonel Lindbergh, the amount demanded, but before keeping the cemetery rendezvous handed $20,000 back to Colonel Lindbergh and persuaded the man he met to be content with the remaining $50,000.

In an improvised courtroom at the Lindbergh estate, Curtis waived a hearing on a charge of giving false information and was ordered committed to jail in default of $10,000 bail.

The statute under which he was arraigned provides a penalty of three years imprisonment or $1,000 fine or both.

Want Whole Truth

Primarily the directing heads of the relentless pursuit wanted to know whether Curtis had told the "whole truth."

They made public the hitherto unconfirmed information that Curtis associate in his "fake" negotiations, Dean Dobson-Peacock of Norfolk, Va., once expressed his confidence in the "contacts" of Curtis and made a futile request that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh supply $25,000 for ransom purposes.

Arraignment of Curtis late in the afternoon climaxed a day during which he had been under the constant escort of a state policeman, who was guarding against possibility of a suicide attempt by Curtis. The police said information from Norfolk related that Curtis, who suffered financial reverses in recent years, once had sought to take his life in the south.

It was emphatically and officially denied, however, that he had made any such attempt since his confession.

Curtis Formally Arrested

Curtis formally was arrested in the Lindbergh garage prior to his being taken before Justice of the Peace George Webster. The complaint on which he was arraigned charged that "on May 13, 1932, John Hughes Curtis, being within the state of New Jersey at the township of East Amwell and the county of Hunterdon aforesaid for the purpose of hindering the apprehension of the persons or persons guilty of the said crime did knowingly or willfully give false and untrue reports of the person or persons guilty of the commission of the crime aforesaid."

Vines, Allison Van Ryn, Shields Meet Australia

NEW YORK, May 18. (AP)—The same American Davis cup team which triumphed over Canada and Mexico without the loss of a match Wednesday was named to oppose Australia in the North American zone final at Philadelphia May 27, 28 and 29.

The team consists of Ellsworth Vines, the national champion, Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn and Frank Shields.

In the two series played Vines has won four singles matches, Allison two and Shields two. Allison and Van Ryn paired to win the two doubles encounters.

The same lineup as has played heretofore probably will play against Australia, with Allison and Vines playing the first two singles matches, Allison and Van Ryn the doubles and Shields in reserve for one of the two final singles.

It has been eight years since the United States and Australia met in Davis cup competition, in the 1924 challenge round.

The winner of next week's encounter will play Brazil, survivor of the South American zone by default, in June at a site and on dates yet to be selected.

BANDITS GET $1,000; CASHIER KIDNAPED

Woman Held Captive Four Hours; Is Released Unharmed

PETROLIA, Tex., May 18. (AP)—Two men robbed the Continental State bank of Petrolia of $1,000 at noon Wednesday and kidnaped the assistant cashier, Miss Mary Frazier. They later released Miss Frazier in Montague county. She was not harmed.

Miss Frazier was unable to give a detailed description of the robbers, who held her captive for four hours. She said they talked little and were courteous.

Miss Frazier was alone in the bank at the time of the robbery, the president, H. W. Perkins, having gone to lunch. A customer found the bank empty.

O'Brien Assails Tariff Plan

WASHINGTON, May 18. (AP)—Robert L. O'Brien, chairman of the tariff commission, Wednesday assailed plans for an upward adjustment of import duties against countries having depreciated money. He announced his readiness, however, to support a horizontal boost in Hawley-Smoot rates for which a "great deal could be said."

AUSTIN, Tex., May 18. (AP) — Four murder sentences, including one in which the death penalty had been assessed, were affirmed Wednesday by the court of criminal appeals.

NEW DETAILS

said answered the description. Mud was scraped from the sedan and was taken to headquarters where it will be analyzed. Police want to know whether the mud came from New Jersey.

Comb Whole Affair

The whole affair, involving ghostly men and ships, was being combed for threads in the tangled yarn, while the very Rev. H. Dodson-Peacock maintained all he knew of the bewildering details of the hoax had been revealed to him by the press, that he could not go to Hopewell, for questioning at present, and that he "knew nothing" about the request for "earnest money," allegedly conveyed to Lindbergh by him. Schwarzkopf quoted him as saying he was doubtful whether he could get to Hopewell at all.

The Dean refused here to comment on Schwarzkopf's statement that it was apparently Curtis and not an unidentified man who summoned him by telephone to New York where he said he was presented with a proposal for the return of the child for $50,000 ransom.

Peacock Reiterates Statement

Dean Dobson-Peacock reiterated his statement he believed the men, whose identity he said was unknown to him, were engaged in an extortion plot entirely separate and independent of the Norfolk "negotiations."

The proposal, he said, was rejected after he had sought out Curtis, then in New York, and the two decided they had better "clues." Dean Dobson-Peacock denied flatly the charge attributed to Curtis that the miniser could have prevened his unforunate part in the hoax.

It was learned from bank officials that New Jersey authorities during their investigation here opened a safety deposit box of Curtis and examined its contents. It could not be learned, however, what information or clues the investigators may have obtained.

Burrage Still Silent

While Dean Dobson-Peacock Episcopal clergyman, was maintaining he had worked with Curtis in good faith, and with absolute confidence in the Norfolk shipbuilder's story, rear admiral Guy H. Burrage, U. S. Navy, retired, continued silent. The admiral, consulted by Curtis because he knew Colonel Lindbergh, has been entirely non-commital since the revelation by Curtis that the two months of negotiations here were a hoax, and all the characters and boats imaginary.

The admiral's part as a member of the trio apparently was to gain them an audience with Colonel Lindbergh, who returned from his epochal Paris flight on the crusier Memphis, commanded by Burrage.

Commonwealth's attorney Arnold started an investigation Wednesday to determine whether false information regarding any person had been furnished by Curtis or anyone else in connection with the Lindbergh case.

The collegians' show Wednesday evening was a minstrel skit with Thomas Graham as interlocutor, Bob Stafford and Crawford Haynes as end men and a chorus of twelve, songs by Catherine Peyton and Aaron Sturgeon and a dialogue by Ulmon Clements and Sturgeon being included in the program as well as local gags.

LINDBERGH TOOK

ly he would convict himself under the strain of solitude.

Monday they went at him again and his self-composure began to crumble. He was taken to the rogue's gallery in Newark to "identify" one of the criminals if possible and he confirmed suspicions by picking out the photograph of a man known to be in the state hospital for the insane. He later pointed him out from a group of inmates, then guessed he must have been mistaken.

Agitation Visible

He was ignored again that night and his agitation was visble.. About midnight Inspector Harry Walsh of Jersey City invited him to a friendly game of checkers but "his mind wasn't on the game." The detective took him out for a stroll and suggested suavely that he "tell the truth." A 1:15 Tuesday morning, the harried man said:

"I am ready to tell the truth."

In his first confession he admitted only he had not seen any of the ransom money paid by Dr. John F. Condon. Walsh kept at him to "come clean." At 4 o'clock he hurled his chair against the wall, called for a typewriter and with the breaking of dawn told his story.

She Reduced 38 Pounds the Safe Way

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for 4 months and I think they are wonderful. I am 32 years old and 5 feet 2 in. tall. I was very fat I weighed 165 lbs. and now I weigh 127 lbs. and feel fine. If I let up taking the Salts one morning I feel lazy and heavy." Mrs. Florence Loftus, Boston.

This is just one of hundreds of letters we get every month—Kruschen not only causes you to lose fat but while you are losing it you gain in health—in vivaciousness—you ulsoe fat where fat is most prominent and at the same time keep stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning naturally.

Any drug store in the world will sell a jar of Kruschen for a trifling sum—take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning—go light on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets. But for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts—imitation are numerous. It's the little daily dose that does it. —Adv.

DO YOU INHALE?

...wonder why cigarette advertising generally avoids this question?

ONE of the mysteries in cigarette advertising has been the apparent fear of the word "inhale." It seems rather foolish—for everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not . . . every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure that you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because when you smoke Luckies your delicate membranes get the protection no other cigarette affords. All other methods have been made old-fashioned by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do! So truly this message is for you.

Prices Record-breakingly Low!

Never in Goodyear experience—never in all tire history—have the prices of Goodyear Tires been so low as they are today. Don't try to guess them by what you last paid for tires. They're 50% lower than they were five years ago—30% lower than in 1929. And your money today buys the handsomest, toughest, longest-wearing Goodyear All-Weather ever built. Think of that, and ask yourself: Why buy any second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more!

The difference in SAFETY is about 10,000 Miles

ANYONE who gives a little thought to non-skid safety must quickly conclude that there are only two kinds of tire treads.

One has straight, smooth, sled-runner ribs of rubber where the tire contacts the road.

The other has tough, stout, sharp-edged, sure-biting traction blocks in the center of the tread.

Virtually all tires fit the first description—and the one important exception is the Goodyear All-Weather Tread.

It is interesting to note in this connection that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

THEY must find by experience that center traction makes Goodyear Tires safer—but you might like to ask "how much?"

The answer, as nearly as we can figure is—about 10,000 miles.

A new tire with smooth rubber in the center of the tread is no safer than a Goodyear after its tread-center has worn smooth in use.

And judging from average driving experience, Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tires keep their clean-cut center traction—their non-skid safety—for somewhere around the first 10,000 miles.

You can draw your own conclusions, but it looks to us as if this made Goodyears 10,000 miles safer than other tires.

There seem to be several million motorists like yourself who have reached the same conclusion, because Goodyear Tires are first choice by millions.

If you want extra safety in the next tires you buy, just ask yourself one question: Why buy a second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more?

Why be satisfied with a second-choice tire when FIRST-choice costs no more!

Exhibit of Work by Paris Artists at Lamar Study Club's Tea Feature

Exhibition of paintings and other art work by Paris people was held at the tea given Wednesday at the home of Mrs. P. D. Jeffries on North Main street by the Lamar Study club, the guests including members of all women's study clubs of the city.

This display included portraits, landscapes and still life in water colors and oils, a group of charcoal, pencil and watercolor studies by art students, and examples of applied art for decorative and commercial purposes.

Represented in these various groups were Mrs. Irene Granberry, Mrs. W. A. Moore, Miss Hettie Wood, Mrs. J. W. Love, Misses Golden Alexander, Eugie Massenburg and Sarah Osborne, Mrs. E. L. Middleton, D. B. Alexander, Bruce Phenix, Mrs. Lynn Whiteside, Mrs. Pat Jordan, Mrs. M. F. Drummond, Miss Marie Ludwick, Miss Early Fleming, Miss Charisie Fleming, Helen and Estelle Wright, Anne Ezell, Mrs. George Robertson, Bettie Hahn, Morrison George, Jack Bills, Margaret Burke, Mrs. C. M. Terrell, Mrs. F. S. Linch, Charlotte Poole and eight year old Blake Alexander. In addition, several posters made by rural school students for various purposes were displayed.

Linoleum block printing designs by Mrs. Moore and Miss Ezell, with some handcraft, jewelry by the latter, wood carving examples by Morrison George, painting on glass by Mrs. Jordan and on velvet by Mrs. Masters, and Mr. Phenix, and decorative fire screens, one by Mr. Phenix in silhouette style, were among the unusual items.

A Texas scene with a field of bluebonnets by Miss Osborne and a sketch in oils of an East Texas oil field scene by Mrs. Granberry were examples of today's trend in art as well as in literature, toward development of interest in the Southwest. Portraiture was best exemplified perhaps, by an oil sketch by Miss Alexander and the modern or impressionistic treatment in an oil sketch of an Indian jar by Mrs. Moore.

A small landscape, the work of Mrs. Mary Ragsdale Fewell of Dallas, formerly of Paris, has an interesting history; Mrs. Fewell was 84 years old before she ever realized her ambition to paint pictures and this is one of her first sketches, which she presented to Mrs. Ingram.

The reception rooms were decorated with a wealth of roses and other flowers, and during the afternoon piano selections by Mrs. Carl K. Fisher, Mrs. J. I. Norman, Mrs. Louis Stoner, and Mrs. Roy Johnson and Miss Thetis Williams were rendered. and Mrs. Johnson Hunter sang two solos.

Members of the club formed the house party and in the dining room, the lace spread table had a centerpiece of crimson roses surrounded by green tapers in crystal candlesticks. Misses Helen Jones, Elizabeth Anne Payne, Mary Strong and Emma Jane Amis assisted in serving the refreshments punch and cake and sandwiches and mints in pastel shades.

"LENIENCY" IN HAWAII

GOVERNOR Judd's action in commuting the sentences of Lieutenant Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and the two enlisted men in the navy, was not unexpected, and it was far wiser than wohld have been the proposed interference.

Judge Davis did his duty under the law in pronouncing the sentence, just as the jury did its duty under the law in finding its verdict upon the evidence placed before it. Its recommendation for leniency undoubtedly was sincere, and Judge Davis imposed a minimum sentence.

Greater power rested in the governor of the territory, and while his action failed by a hair of being a pardon, which would have been a complete restoration of civil rights, it undoubtedly was a carefully considered decision in which the public interest in Hawaii was given due weight with the general feeling of sympathy for the four defendants.

With only a distant view of the situation it is easily to be conceived that such an outcome, supplementing executive clemency to the Americans accused of killing the Hawaiian may prove the most satisfactory ending of the affair, even though it may be open to criticism in the abstract as a compromise of the law.

The lines of this case ran deeply into vital national interests of the United States in Hawaii There is no question that they had an aspect that was serious and threatening. American sympathy was strong for Lieutenant Massie and his three associated defendants, but American interest was compelled to recognize something beyond this individual phase of the situation. There ought to be as great concern for the welfare of American government in Hawaii, as for the four defendants, and there will be hope that deserved leniency for them shall prove to have been so wisely handled that the broader American interests shall not suffer.

ONE SPARROW, ONE CROWD

IT has been said, and demonstrated, that any one can attract a crowd in New York by merely standing and staring at the upper floors of a skyscraper. Now a lowly sparrow has done as much by choosing a Broadway corner as a site for its nest. A pedestrian jam that threatened the movement of traffic and required extra police to break up grew around the first few spectators. The bird was merely carrying bits of grass and string to its window ledge, but the crowd was fascinated.

The psychology of idle crowds is a strange and baffling study. They will congregate to watch a man dig a ditch, to stare at a busy steam shovel or to speculate on a sign painter's progress. The sight of some one or something working seems to be irresistible.

The busy sparrow had still another attraction. It was a bird, and birds belong outdoors, in man's natural habitat. So its industry, drew a crowd, some feeling a primitive homesickness, but most of them merely marveling at the sight of work in a city which prides itself on being one of the most blase centers on earth Queer critters, mankind.

A MAN PLOWS A FIELD LIFE PLOWS MEN THEN COMES THE HARVEST

OVER on the side hill I see a man plowing. A tiny little figure, two fine horses, a plow. He's turning a green hill to brown. I see the share of his plow shine in the morning. I see the earth where he has turned it gleam dully. I hear the birds cry. I see them fluttering behind him as he he moves slowly across the field. I can not see his face—he is too far away—but I can hear his distant shout.

A man is plowing, and there's something about that sight that moves you strangely. Something stirs within you and rises slowly to the surface .... I do not know what planting he intends. Maybe vegetables. Maybe corn. Maybe grain. Something. I know, that will lie still in seed for a while and then drive itself tenderly, strongly through the good dark earth to the surface and spring upwards .... I know, too, that he's planting faith and hope. A man can not go despairingly to his field and work in the earth and put seeds, down with desperation in his heart. He must feel that, out of his plowing, this seeding, this planting of things, something good must come—and that will be well in the autumn of the year when crops are harvested. The farmer is the finest optimist we know.

Marshall Maslin

A man plows in a field and life plows a man. The earth is a growing place for the farmer. The farmer is a growing place for life. Hope plows the man; faith plows him, his dreams plow deeply into him. Joy plows and so does sorrow. He is broken by disappointment, torn apart by agonies, made green again by wisdom and his own natural strength. ....Out of him, out of the plowing, comes something fair at last. Out of him a harvest of gold and purple fruits. Out of the harvest an understanding of all his struggles and his endeavors, his dark defeats and his glowing triumphs. He is a rich field at last, a man who has done his part, offered himself boldly to living, been worked upon by the gleaming plowshare of Life, given up through the years the best that is in him.

A man plowing a field and Life plowing a man—there's nothing to break your heart in those two things, and much to lift your heart to happiness.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

MY STORY about Lamar county hangings reminded Bob Proctor of a boyhood experience he had sixty-odd years ago which he has never forgotten and never will. It was not a hanging but an incident of frontier justice that was not uncommon in those days

Bob had come to Lamar county with his parents from Upshur county in 1866, and his father, a building contractor, settled in Paris. Some time afterwards Bob's sister married a man named Cato who lived in the southeast part of the county and when Bob was about ten years old, along in 1867 or '68, he went down there to visit.

One morning the brother-in-law and some of the neighbors decided to go out and kill some game and Bob was allowed to go along. There was no extra saddle for him so he rode barebacked, which was no trick at all for a boy in those days, and the party proceeded out into Round prairie.

They presently came to a deep ravine running through the prairie and Bob noticed the men talking together and presently one of them said, "I don't reckon he ever saw anything like it, and I reckon it would be all right for him to see it," whereupon they changed their direction a little and rode up to the edge of the ravine and dismounted and hitched their horses to the saddle horns and looked over into the ravine.

Bob looked also and what he saw was a dead cow and two dead men. All had been dead some time, from appearances, but enough was left of them to show that one man was white and the other a negro. There was little flesh left on them but their hair remained and their clothes partly torn by the weather clung to their frames. There had been no attempt to bury the bodies, and so far as Bob ever knew, none was ever made.

The men then told him that the two dead men were cattle thieves. Stealing cattle was common then but dangerous if detected, for the cattle owners did not wait for the slow moving law but meted out their own punishment. The hide of a cow was worth about as much when brought to town and sold as the whole animal would be worth on the range, and the thieves usually killed and skinned the cows they stole, and sold the hides. The men who showed him the dead men told him that cattle thieves had been operating in that neighborhood and some cattle owners set a watch The two men were seen to drive a cow into the ravine where they were out of sight and a shot was heard. The watchers then rode up and surprised the thieves, who had shot the cow and were beginning to skin her. The guilt was apparent and the penalty was inflicted and the men and cow were left where they fell.

When Bob came back home he had something to tell the boys, and it is probable that they envied him his unusual experience.

As Tom and I had entered, Sam, with his perpetual grin, had come chuckling over to meet us and escorted us over to the corner booth, where Larry and Ione were holding forth.

"Folks down on the South Side whar I lives, tells me you-all got my name in yo' ac' on the air, Mista Barry," Sam announced, chuckling.

"That's right," Tom told him with a grin. "Have to keep you before the public, Sam."

"Catacomb's cat say Sam's going to remember you for that," Sam offered, still chuckling.

"Great old guy," Tom commented as Sam made off, having ascertained our wishes in the manner of refreshment.

Sam's was distinctly one of the places. His personality had developed a big following. Those dim recesses under the Drive that led to the Catacombs were frequented by banker, broker, copper, judge, scribe, artist, actor and official.

When business wasn't too pressing, Sam would gladly blend his rich baritone with you in song. Just before pay day he wrote graciously on his cuff, and a mangy Tom cat which he kept about the place frequently, so Sam said, ordered him to treat his guests.

"Well, I see you and Henderson got together on another deal," Larry observed in mocking jest pointing to the new addition to my small library. "What is it this time?"

"That's a genuine first edition for which I parted with exactly fifty cents," I informed him. "It's an old ship's log of a cruise made a century ago to trade trinkets to cannibals for pearls down in the South Sea islands.—it's the only copy so it becomes a first as well as an only edition."

Through half-closed eyes Ione meditatively studied the ceiling for a moment.

"South Seas, with great crescents of white beach, fringed with tall, graceful palms. The soft swish of the sea, ceaslessly washing the sand; blue, wide sea on which the sun scatters myriads of glittering diamonds. Quiet lagoons and pearls —" she mused aloud. "That's a grand picture," and she opened her eyes again.

"Well, well, our little girl friend seems to be getting up steam and going poetical on us," I remarked lightly. "Come out of the day dream, baby! You are right here in Chicago, where the elevated trains thunder by on stilts, and where you take your life in your hands every time you cross the street. You haven't any right to the wanderlust—"

She studied me quisically for a few seconds.

"I'd like to know why not?" she asked softly. "Just because I held a job on one newspaper for a few years is no reason I can't dream dreams of strange scenes of the farflung corners of the world. Even if I do have to 'cover' relief commissions in the morning and soup kitchens in the afternoon.—"

"We were having a discussion just before you came in," Larry offered.

"About what?" Tom wanted to know.

"Oh, the depression and—"

"What a unique topic of conversation," I jeered.

"—and Life in general," he finished.

"That takes in more territory and widens the field slightly, at that," I admitted.

"Just before we came in you were saying—" Tom suggested.

"That we cliff dwellers of civilization's great cities are a lot of economic slaves, chained to desks and pay envelopes, just as surely as galley slaves were chained," Larry growled. "We spend our lives writing bad stories about the antics of a lot of uninteresting people for nitwits to read—"

"Yes, I know what you mean," I broke in. "Stay in the rut because it is warm, safe and comfortable. All we get out of it is barely enough to eat, a roof and a few clothes,"

Tom, who had been studying the table, looked up.

"It is sort of futile," he said softly. "I grind away on that script and while we are driving over here it goes on the air, evaporates, and that's that."

"We are so busy battling the mob to eke out a bare existence that we don't have time to live," I agreed. "We bargain our lives for beauty and take home tinsel. Because we're in the newspaper racket we are behind the scenes and we snicker cynically at the mob which takes at face value the majestic turning of the hands of the great clock. God gave us sunligfht to paint us with tan, water to swim in, pleasant land to walk on —and we persist in living in great city ant hills."

"We're afraid to take life with both hands and live it," Tom said thoughtfully. "So we stay in habit's chains, that Larry mentioned, until we get old and doddering without memories of how the rest of the world lives. Then we die and get one small grave to lie in. Summed up, life is only memories."

"We aren't 'family men' or anchored with dependents," I declared. "We are free to roam the world. The only thing we have to do is just get up and go—put one foot in front of the other. We would never starve to death and we would collect a choice assortment of memories for old age. Think what would have happened if Columbus hadn't—"

"This isn't any argument," Tom announced. " We just sit here and 'yes' each other along. But for all of that we'll probably never do anything about it," he added whimsically. "None of us have courage enough to bust the chains. Adventure is dead and high romance languisheth—"

"Listen to this," Ione interrupted. She hadn't been joining in the bits of wisdom we had been hurling at each other. Instead, she had been quietly studying my new volume.

"'I have this day determined to She read:

capture the great black pearl which adorns the forehead of the chief heathen idol of the Polynesian islands, known as the Sacred Eye of Nu, the fame of which we have repeatedly heard on our travels. This jewel, reputed to be the largest and most perfect in this part of the world which abounds in pearls, is guarded only by priests and temple attendants so far as we can learn from the savages. The temple where this image sits is on an atol, inhabited only by the heathen priests. Our cargo is nearly disposed of, and I shall set sail on this venture shortly, and then immediately begin the return voyage to the home port. Trade has been excellent and we have a rich assortment of gems now in the strong box from this trip. Because of the risk in capturing the idol's jewel eye, the crew are to be given a share in the moneys received from its sale—"

"Look here," Ione said. "The last pages of this are all in code of some sort. But here is an exact position of something given in the middle of this code in degrees, minutes and seconds, Tom, you were a naval man during the war—what is it?"

"Probably the position of the sacred atol where the pearl was to be found," he said, studying it a moment. "That's just what we were talking about. That's adventure—that old boy Whitney, who ever he was, had it in the large manner!"

"Do you suppose he managed to capture it?" Ione wondered out loud.

"No, it's probably still there, or why would the old captain have taken all the trouble to put all of this stuff in code?" he laughed. "If you want to know anything about plots, ask me. That is all I do all day—work out plots."

"Pearls or no pearls," I said with a grin, "I would love to get away from this nerve-shattering roar of the city for a while and get painted with a good coat of tan. I am going stale."

As Larry and I entered our hotel a little later the clerk handed me a telephone memorandum with my key. The name "Miss Whitney" was filled in, with a penciled notation after Remarks: "Will call at 7:30."

I showed it to him without comment as we waited for the elevator.

HOLLYWOOD.—An excited secretary rushed in to an efficiency expert the other morning and said, "Quick, sir, you'd better call the fire department, the whole building is in blazes."

"Did you put some water on it?" asked the efficiency expert.

"Sure," answered the secretary.

"Well then," replied his superior, "there's no use calling the fire department; that's all they could do."

Diet and Health

By Logan Clendening, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

If you want a permanent Cupid's bow on your lips or permanently pink cheeks, there are plenty of professional tattooers who will guarantee to give them to you.

Dr. Clendening

It is possible, of course, that the cheeks will be a little too pink, and that the Cupid's bow put on when you are 20 will not look exactly like a bow when you are 50.

But that has always been the trouble with tattooing. The tattoo is put on with one idea and then time goes on. Your mind changes, but not the tattoo. A fellow of 20 has two hearts and a "Nellie" tattooed on his arm, and then marries a girl named "Agnes." And every time he washes his hands, or the weather turns warm and he takes off his shirt, there is the proof of his youthful bad taste breaking up the domestic harmony. I know a fellow whose whole life was embittered and he had to fork over thousands of dollars because his wife found out she could get his goat by saying, "What do you think Nellie would say if she could see you now?"

Curious incidents are related about tattooing. A French criminal was about to be executed when a tattoo mark was found on his neck which read, "Executioner, cut on the dotted line."

The back is a favorite place for tattooers. It furnishes a grand canvas for illustrations on the heroic scale. The Lord's Supper is a favorite theme for the back. One fellow, whose pal gave him a Lord's Supper on his back for a birthday present, insisted on having, "Much obliged to Joe" tattooed underneath it.

When age adds a little weight to the old frame and lack of following my diets makes the back spread, it sometimes changes the picture. Once a slim youth had a Mona Lisa tattooed on his back. When he got to be 45 and weighed 270, the Mona Lisa wasn't smiling any more. She was laughing.

So it happens that the desire for removal of tattoo marks is just as popular as the desire to put them on.

Many methods have been employed to remove tattooing. Often they are painful and disfiguring. For instance, a red hot iron has been used to cauterize the spot. This results in a scar quite as unsightly as the tattoo mark. Carbolic and nitric acid and other such methods are employed by professional tattoo removers—all of questionable safety.

However, there are a number of scientific and safe methods of tattoo removal. There are three general methods of safe and conservative removal, according to Dr. Marvin D. Shie of the United States Public Health Service—surgery, electrolysis, and chemical. Surgery is applicable only to small or to long, thin marks. Chemical methods, according to Dr. Shie, are just as certain and less painful or tedious than the electric ones.

My New York

By James Aswell

NEW YORK.—Marginalia of a Madhattanite:

Jean Harlow, offstage, affects a large dark cross upon the bosom of her evening gowns .... Why? .... You'd think if she had a cross to bear, it would be platinum-tinted .... All the gals imported from across the water for Hollywood flickers are declared to resemble either Garbo or Dietrich .... Anna Sten actually does carry some of the aura of Marlene .... Sten—what a curiously provocative tag!

Steinway hall has more sheer—and perhaps slightly musty—dignity than any building in town ... The immense portraits of Paderewski, Hoffman, Rachmaninoff ... Paderewski by Zuloage, is almost god-like; the pianist, however, seems slightly angry, as if an auditor had just coughed, or a clubwoman begun to whisper .... Rachmaninoff, composing tranquilly under apple trees, is the merriest of the lot.

Elderly telegraph boys ... When I open my apartment door at 3 a. m. to dispatch a late column and confront a uniformed Methuselah I am always taken back ... You can't tip a 60-year old messenger boy a dime, ... The costumers, I hear, are cleaning up on bi-centennial orders. One of the largest wig and fancy dress firms has employed 200 extra helpers and business has skyrocketed 40 per cent .... Seventeen hands were required to get ready a rush order for Dolly Gann, in Washington.

HOLIDAY.

My nose is vaguely peeled and my hands are definitely blistered after a day's fishing trip to Oyster Bay. The excursion was a complete success, and if I caught no fish, I hooked everything else, from old shoes to eels and a monstrous denizen of the deep which resembled a cross between a grasshopper and an alarm clock.

New York is a place where, to appear with anything resembling sunburn, elicits the remark: "I see you've been using one of those sun-ray thingamajigs. Does it work?" And I know an elderly banker who has pedaled half way around the world in the last year—on his stationary boudoir bicycle, equipped with a speedometer.

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL.

I cannot deny Roseland, the taxi dance hall, another mention here, now that they've established there a school for hostesses—with a course in love-making which every girl in the place must pass! .... Bob Ripley, poking about the South Seas for months past, cut short his itinerary in far, strange places to come back to New York—where believe-it-or-not items are to be plucked on every bush.

Thorne Smith, author of the "Topper" books, is one of the town's genuinely picturesque scribblers .... And they are few enough! .... Thorne, exhuberant over completing the proofreading on a new tome, rushed out of his apartment so fast the other evening he tripped and lost three teeth .... Which, like the friendly ghosts in his novels, materialized quickly under the ministrations of a good dentist.

No longer do artists in Greenwich Village lounge through pleasant summer days dreaming out resplendent futures .... They have felt the pinch of circumstances and the absence of checks from home .... "The only art I can support from now on," wrote the father of a promising young etcher the other day, "is the art of making one pound of steak serve where two served before. You might as well explore its mystery, too." And she has—and how!

PART-TIME MUSE.

Even a Chinese restaurant failed the other day in the Village. Which is news, in any section of town; the chop suey emporiums have generally been thought to be able to thrive on a clientele of Mahatma Ghandis—and serve no goat's milk.

Walter Fisher, esteemed as a competent "working sculptor"—which is to say, one who executes the designs of architests—has taken a job as manager of a section in one of the huge department stores .... Other painters, clay-twisters, scriveners and poets of the district now have daytime jobs, which run the gamut from dish washing to making artificial flowers .... They comfort themselves with the thought that John Masefield once polished glasses in a Greenwich Village saloon.

PERSONAL ADVICE

By Virginia Lee

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am in love with a young man and I am sure he loves me as he has asked me to marry him as soon as he gets his little home paid for.

"But, Virginia, the trouble is I have been married. When I was only 14 I married a boy on a dare. We lived together only three days. I didn't love this boy as I was too young to even know what love was. I have regretted that one mistake every day of my life since then.

"Virginia, do you think that this boy would stop loving me if he knew about my past? Some of my friends say that they wouldn't tell him, if they were me, but I would never marry him without telling. I'm afraid I'll lose his love. Sometimes I think it best to go away and try to forget this boy, but I know I never could.

"JUST A GIRL."

Are you not making a mountain out of a molehill, my dear? Surely it is not such a disgrace that you married the boy—although it was a very foolish thing for a youngster to do, I admit. The marriage was annuled, was it not? It was not legal, as you were both under age.

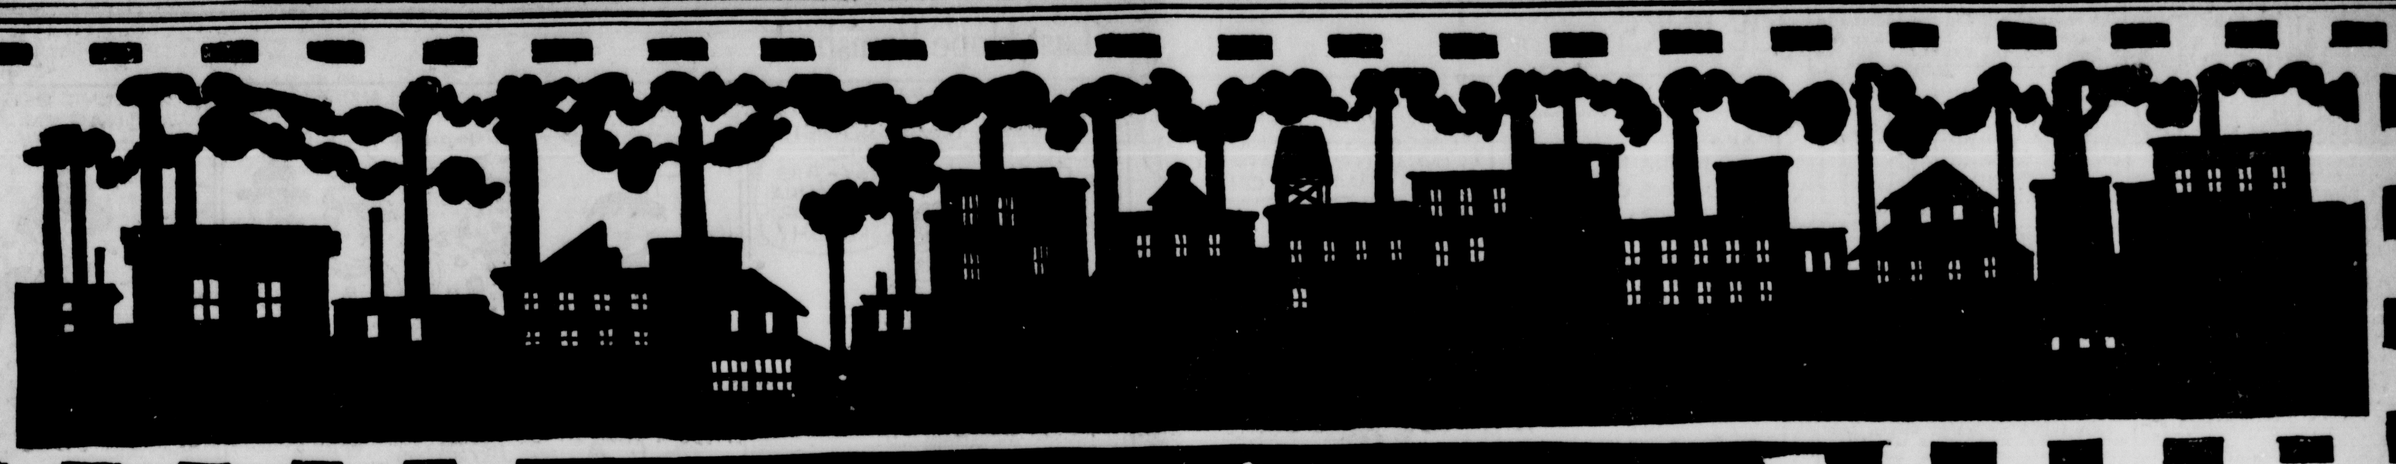

Don't be afraid to tell your boy friend about it. I agree with you that he should be told. Some one would probably inform him of the matter some time, and you are the right one to tell him.

Brace up, tell him and have it over with, I don't believe the information will kill his love for you. If he shows symptoms of letting it do so let me know and I'll write to him and tell him a few things.

MARIAN: All you can do to keep Gene from going back to Rose is to be as nice to him as possible. Maybe he doesn't think Rose is cuter than you are. At any rate, she had him first, didn't she? How does she feel about the matter? Does she feel as if you took him away from her?

Finland formerly was an autonomous Grand Duchy of the Russian Empire.

Although extending far north into very cold latitudes, with rugged climate and topography, Finland is an agricultural country.

NEW YORK, May 18. (AP)—Babe Ruth, first man up in the tenth inning capped a brilliant pitching performance by Henry Johnson with his seventh home run of the season and the Yankees won, 3 to 2 over Cleveland Wednesday.

Johnson, making his first start of the year after being held back by an appendicitis operation, gave only six hits and fanned a dozen batsmen but he weakened toward the end and allowed the Indians to tie the score. Bill Dickey also hit a homer for the Yanks.

GUY BUSH HURLS WIN OVER PHILS

Stick Work of Veteran Grimm Also Helps Chicago Cubs

CHICAGO, May 18. (AP)—Pitching by Guy Bush and batting by the veteran Charley Grimm gave the Cubs a 6 to 4 victory over Philadelphia Wednesday and a margin of three games out of four in the series.

Bush, who checked in with his fifth victory of the season, limited the Phillies to seven hits and was in trouble only in the sixth inning when "Chuck" Klein drove one of his slants out of the park with Brickell and Bartell on base. Grimm smashed out three hits to give him a total of nine safe blows in the last three games against the Phillies.

Ray Benge and Bush pitched shutout ball for a tight hurling duel but in the fifth the Cubs broke loose with a four-run rally.

Wednesday's victory gave the Cubs a record of eight victories out of twelve against eastern competition in the home-stay at Wrigley field and kept their lead in the National league pennant race intact.

SHIPPERS DOWN TYLER IN TENTH

Ervin Fox Big Noise In Beaumont's Ten Inning Victory

BEAUMONT, May 18. (AP)—Ervin Fox was the big noise in Beaumont's 10-inning victory over Tyler Wednesday afternoon. His homer in the ninth with none on tied the score at 4-all after he previously had socked George Hollerson, who traveled the route, for a double and triple.

The winning run was scored on Clifton's double and Mueller's error on Tauby's grounder, the ball rolling into center field while Clifton raced home.

Sulivan started for the locals but couldn't get anybody out. He was relieved by Marrow who pitched two innings before being taken out for a pinch hitter. In the third Judge Schultz went to the hill and though he immediately allowed a run on a walk, single and sacrifice fly he settled down and allowed only one Trojan to get on base in the remaining seven innings.

Buffs Tame Spudders

HOUSTON, May 18. (AP) — Ed Heusser, big rookie right-hander with a great curve Wednesday limited the slugging Wichita Falls Spudders to 3 singles and fanned eight, as he twirled the Houston Buffs to a 5 to 1 victory. The victory may prove costly because Joe Medwick, the league's leading hitter, sprained his ankle in rounding third after hitting a triple in the sixth.

Markets

Dallas Produce

DALLAS, May 18. (AP)—Poultry and eggs: Hens, per pound, 8-12c; young chickens, per pound 10-20c; roosters, pound 4-8c; turkeys, per pound, 6-14c; guineas, dozen $2.40-$2.80; geese, pound 6-7c; eggs, dozen 8-9c; packing butter, pound 7-8c; ducks, per pound 8-10c. Paris prices corresponding.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, May 18. (AP)—Cotton showed a generally steady tone Wednesday on covering and a scattering demand influenced by relatively steady Liverpool cables, rather a less favorable weekly weather report than anticipated. And an improved technical position following Tuesday's decline.

July closed at 5.61. The general market closed steady at net advance of 8 to 9 points.

The close was within 2 or 3 points of the best.

The weekly report of the weather bureau stating that the week generally speaking was rather unfavorable for cotton, with warmer weather needed in most sections and moisture deficient in the eastern half of the belt, was considered a disappointment to some of yesterday's sellers and probably led to some covering.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, May 18. (AP)—Cotton was only moderately active Wednesday and prices showed a slight upward trend, gaining 6 to 7 points on the day.

Manchester will be closed until Monday next as usual during whitsuntide week.

The weekly weather and crop summary when issued proved more unfavorable than expected, reporting temperatures too cool and drouth in the southeastern part of the belt. This report coupled with firmer stocks and favorable advices from Washington caused covering and some trade buying.

The market eased off after noon and lost about half of the earlier gain owing to easier stocks and prospects for rain in the eastern belt but rallied again near the end to within 2 points of the top with July closing at 5.63 and Oct. at 5.89 or 7 points net higher for the day on both active months.

Fort Worth Livestock

FORT WORTH, May 18. (AP) — Hogs 1,500; including 73 directs; truck top $3.15. Rail butchers $3.10; butcher pigs, $2.50; packing sows mostly $2.25.

Cattle, 2,900; including 600 calves; fed steers mostly $4.10-$5.15; plainer grades around $3.75; good fed yearling $81 $5.65; plainer grades around $4.50; few fat cows $3.35; butcher grades mostly $2.50; low cutter sorts .75-$1.35; few odd head bulls around $1.75; stocker steers and yearlings $3.60-$4.60; plain south Texas calves $3.75; part load vealers $5.75.

Sheep 5,000; spring lambs $4.25-$5; aged fat wethers $1.25; middling up to $4, or $0 lower for good shorn fed lambs.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, May 18. (AP)—Weakness in public utility stocks proved mildly contagious Wednesday and the market sagged to a new low as measured by price averages.

Trading, however, shrank to very small proportions. Among industrial and railroad issues few net losses equalled or exceeded a point, although power and light company stocks were depressed somewhat more severely. Volume totaled 684,270 shares, the smallest in more than a week.

Business news was uninspiring. Publication of the electric power production figures for the last week, showing a drop of 13.1 per cent from a year ago, the largest comparative decline so far reported, put utilities under fire and they continued heavy. Divided actions affecting stock exchange listings were about as expected.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, May 18. (AP)—Grain markets late Wednesday lost effervescence which earlier had been associated with speculative purchases prior to the senate vote on beer.

Wheat closed unstable, 3-8 7-8 under Tuesday's finish, corn unchanged to 3-8 lower, oats unchanged to 1-4 off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

For a while, wheat speculators achieved considerable success in efforts to capitalize beforehand as bullish factor the senate vote on a resolution to legalize beer with a tax estimated to yield $500,000,000. The volume of buying gradually until the market showed more than a full cent advance from an initial sag.

Closing indemnities: Wheat — May 34 7-8, bids, July 58 1-8 1-4, 57 7-8 58, Sept. 58 1-8 1-4, 59 7-8 60, Dec. 61 62 7-8. Corn—July 32 1-4 3-8, 32 7-8 33, Sept. 34 1-2, 35, Dec. 34 34 1-8, 34 3-8.

FERRASAL
HERE'S WHY: Feel stuffy, drowsy, uncomfortable after eating? Even the simplest foods often cause this unhealthy, unpleasant condition. It is the result of excess acids in the digestive tract and unless checked, frequently leads to more serious disorders—kidney, liver troubles, chronic constipation, rheumatism.
Ferrasal quickly neutralizes harmful acids. It cleanses the system gently, leaving the bowels relaxed. Try it.
